

Maggie Thatcher's Government

Maggie the megalomaniac
Is at it again -
She's sacked another Minister,
She hates Tony Benn.
She's pushing through her policies,
She thinks she's Joan of Arc,
So tie her up to the stake
And I'll supply the spark.

Young Michael Heseltine
Is rising to fame
He's asked the Labour Councils
"What's your blinking game?"
Cut your public spending
Or I'll turn my powers loose,
So stand him on the trap door
And I'll supply the noose.

Geoffrey Howe is Chancellor.
His money is in the red.
He's got to cut his spending
To save his political head.
He is most unpopular
With the poor and with the rich,
So strap him in the electric chair
And I will throw the switch.

Mr. Norman Tebbit
Isn't unemployed,
Unlike countless others
Whose jobs have been destroyed,
But if the trend continues,
He'll no longer be of use
So you provide the gelignite
And I will light the fuse.

Mr. Norman Fowler
Is in the best of health
Though not quite so the service
Which is starved of wealth.
But no cash injection
Is there to ease the pain
So wheel him to the theatre
And I'll remove his brain.

Not much changes, does it?

Ken Dearden
(circa 1980)